

Introduction

Experience

DOMINO flatracks are the clear market leaders chosen by steam ship lines big and small, as well as leasing companies throughout the world. The latest technology developed over 30 years combines high strength and reliability backed up by off the shelf spare parts and consultancy advice

Competitive Supply

The flatracks are supplied from around the globe including the USA Europe and the Far East through a network of licensees. This ensures competitive pricing at all times for the buyer and never ending improvements in service and design.

Mix and Match

You can see in the following pages many ideas for developing the flatrack concept. Mix a panelled end wall with an open-ended end wall as shipping line Matson do and you have a unit able to take occasional cargo longer than 40ft. Or add a ramp end to load vehicles. But ramps are not the only way to get cargo on board - the Domino end walls can be lifted off in a few minutes with a small fork truck – see the Lift up End Wall animation.

Standardisation

These flatracks are manufactured in several licensee factories around the world largely to the same design. Standard parts, operations, training, use, ordering all bring substantial cost and safety benefits to the buyer and user.

World-wide Spare Parts

Our spare parts are permanently available off the shelf, as they have been for more than 20 years. This vital support provides users with not only continuity and peace of mind but also a prolonged product service life.

Patents

The structures and components are largely patented and protected by legal expenses and insurance.

Special Features

There are other important considerations such as sling lifting. This is a very important handling consideration in out of the way locations where there are no crane spreaders. Flatracks cannot be safely angle sling lifted. But on Domino flatracks you can have sling lift points just inside the corner posts, which are safe – see What's New in Flatracks.
